

No marks, but Prefontaine is still pleased with miles of 4:28, 4:26 and 4:30. But he fell behind during the fourth mile (4:36) and lost contact completely in the fifth (4:40).

"The fourth and fifth miles are always the toughest because you've been running a long time, yet you are still a long way from the finish," he explained. "You need some help at that point and I had nothing going for me, the weather was awful and there was nobody ahead of me and nobody behind me."

But Prefontaine wasn't hung up on what might have been.

"Last year, I ran all out and when it was over I was exhausted . . . I was gone," he said. "This year with comparable weather I have to think I could have averaged a second faster each lap, and that would have put me right on record pace. I'm strong and my fitness is coming along at a very fast pace."

Prefontaine is now looking forward to his five races against the Finnish national team, including Olympic champion Lasse Viren, beginning next Sunday in Madras.

The next month is an important one for Prefontaine, to the point that he said he would have dropped out of the 10,000 had it been raining rather than risk illness at this juncture.

"Last year I went into hard training again right after this meet," he said. "This year I'm going to play it a little smarter and go easier next week and then be ready for Madras."

The Ducks, meanwhile, are gearing up for Oregon State next weekend and the Pac-8 meet next month. Most of the weightmen lifted weights prior to the meet, and several of the runners had a workout in the morning prior to running in the meet.

The Ducks got what they wanted out of the Twilight Meet, and Prefontaine will take what he got. Both are looking to the immediate future.
