The Apollo Conference recently announced all-conference honors, and Mahomet-Seymour athletes earned several awards in the school's inaugural season in the conference.

For football, Ben Stahl earned first-team honors as an offensive lineman and was voted in unanimously as a defensive lineman.

Wide receiver Joshua Johnson earned first-team all-conference recognition and he made second team as a defensive back. Lucas Morgan received second-team honors as both a running back and linebacker. Linebacker Daunte Roberts earned first-team honors as did defensive back Tanner Kirts. Jack Vaughn made the second team as a defensive lineman.

In volleyball, Savannah Matthews was a unanimous choice for first-team all-conference.

For girls' cross-country, four M-S athletes earned all-conference honors: Jessica Franklin (first place), Brisa McGrath (second place), Megan Churm (fifth place) and Jenna Straub (10th).

For the boys' cross-country team, four Bulldogs also earned all-conference honors: Ryan Hodge (first place), Mathias Powell (second place), Riley Fortune (third place) and Kaelan Davis (10th).

For boys' soccer, Brandon Bussman, Trevor Burgess and Ethan Mansfield earned first-team all-league honors. Brandon Butzin, Austin Carr and Joah Moore earned second-team honors.
